Tales from the Fishery Region.

There is Great Scarcity of Food and Men, Women and Children Are Starving to Death.

A Party of Desperate Esquimos Come in to Fight for Food.

STARVING TO DEATH.

A Pitiful Tale of Want and Misery Among Fishermen.

St. John, N. F., July 26.—The particulars of the distress among the fishermen of Labrador have been received. Seventy Esquimos, who demanded food from the stores at Muford, which could not be given to them owing to the needs of the inhabitants and the small supply, made a rush for the harbor store house where flour and fish were stored. The men of the small settlement gathered to defend their only hope of existence, and a desperate fight ensued in which four of the marauding Esquimos were nearly killed and two of the store house defenders seriously injured. The Esquimos, finding they could not obtain food by force, retreated and sent in several of their number to ask for a small quantity of food which they said was absolutely necessary to the continued existence of their wives and children. Two hundred pounds of flour and about fifty pounds of frozen cod fish were given them. It was reported that in Astoria alone, out of thirty-five or forty families, or a total of 200 persons, over 100 had died, mostly women and children. In Nain the catch of fish has not been sufficient to afford food to the inhabitants.

A Wife Attempts Suicide.

WABASH, Ind., July 26.—A fatal family row occurred yesterday at Lafontaine, a small town in the southern part of this county. While Mr. and Mrs. Henry White were eating dinner, the pair became engaged in an altercation, which ended by White giving his wife a cruel whipping. Crazed by his treatment, the miserable woman seized a knife from the table and cut a huge gash in her throat, which the physicians think will prove fatal. She is still alive at last reports, but sinking.

The State Encampment.

LAFAYETTE, July 25.—Everybody is on the qui vive for the state encampment which begins to-day. Among the arrivals are Captain Leach's artillery, of Attica, the Indianapolis light artillery, the Fort Wayne rifles, company L of Second regiment; Richardson Zouaves, of Indianapolis; the Logansport Grays and the Emmet Guards, Rice Zouaves, and company A, light infantry, all three are from Indianapolis.

The Sangerfest

MILWAUKEE, July 26.—The Sangerfest at Milwaukee concluded Sunday with a street parade and picnic which was attended by 30,000 people who witnessed an elaborate pyrotechnic display. The receipts were $10,000 less than the expenses but the deficit will be covered by a guarantee fund. St. Louis was selected as the city where the next Sangerfest is to be held.

Maud S on the Track.

NEW YORK, July 26.—John Murphy took his weekly trip up to Robert Boner's farm near Tarrytown Saturday, to give Maud S a spin in the course of her regular work, in preparing for the coming trial. He let her out for a quarter of a mile and she trotted true as a die in 30 1/2 seconds. A 2:02 gate.

The young son of George Heffner, of Ligonier, who was wounded several weeks ago by the accidental discharge of a target gun, died of injuries yesterday. Inflammation set in and could not be controlled, and death resulted from lockjaw.

Why the "Royal" is the Best.

The improved method by which it has been made possible to produce pure cream of tartar, has had an important bearing upon the manufacture of baking powder. By the process heretofore generally employed, it has been found impossible to remove all impurities, more particularly the tartrate of lime, which remained to such an extent as to greatly impair the quality of the cream of tartar, and to interfere seriously with the strength and wholesomeness of the baking powders into which it entered.

In the new process, which is owned by the Royal Baking Powder Company of New York, and exclusively employed in its extensive tartar works, the imported crude grape acid is so treated as to remove all vestige of tartrate of lime or other impurities, giving a product before unknown—a chemically pure cream of tartar.

By the employment of these superior facilities, the Royal Baking Powder company has made the Royal Baking Powder, as the chemists all certify, of the highest possible degree of strength, "absolutely pure" and wholesome, and with an always uniform leavening power. It is for these reasons that the "Royal" never fails to produce bread, biscuit, cakes, etc., that are light, sweet, digestible, and wholesome; the eating of which is never followed by indigestion, or any of those physical discomforts attendant upon the partaking of improperly prepared food. In rendering possible the production of a baking powder possessed of these qualifications, the improved method of refining cream of tartar becomes at once a matter of material importance to the culinary world. d&wt

An Alaska traveler who has seen something of the Arctic mosquitoes, describes some of their characteristics. "Why, sir," he exclaimed, "they even kill bears. Now, it seems strange that a mosquito could kill a bear, but this is the way it is done. The bears come down from the hills into the marshlands to feed on roots and berries—a sort of cranberry found there. As soon as they get comfortably to work the mosquitoes attack them and go for their eyes. The bears get up on their hind legs to fight them off, and sink into the swamp. The mosquitoes, which are of a most extraordinary size, keep at them until they are totally blind, and then they have them completely at their mercy. I have seen over a dozen bear carcasses in those swamps, positively killed by the mosquitoes.

NEWSBOYS LET LOOSE.

An Excursion in Which Pandemonium and Howling Rave Were Nowhere.

The New York newsboy's lot is not a happy one at best. From rough usage at the hands of his parents, when he is burdened with any, to the rougher treatment of his own set in the streets he acquires a warlike spirit which tears only the "cop" and the police justice. Might is right with him, and he is docile only when dealing with a customer or in the presence of a stronger antagonist. There is one day in the year though when all restraint is removed and he, or several hundred of them, are allowed to let themselves loose.

This red letter day in the newsboy's life is on the occasion of the excursion granted them each year by John H. Starin. It came off the other day, and the programme varied little from previous years. First the largest double-deck barge in the harbor of New York is made ready at a dock early in the morning, but no earlier than the boys begin to swarm toward it. Each gamin has secured a free ticket days before the event, on his proving that he was an all-wool newsboy and at least a yard in length. A squad of police are on hand to prevent bloodshed, and keep the boys from going in swimming off the dock. There are from 500 to 800 of them, and the pandemonium they keep up cannot be described. After an hour or so of waiting the order is given to go on board, and then a scramble commences to get them in line so as to get them on board Indian file. Those not possessing tickets are weeded out, leaving 350 to go on board. In the meantime a band of nine brave musicians have taken their lives in their hands and intrusted themselves to the mercy of the boys later on. But they are a green band, they have never furnished music to a newsboys' excursion before, and it is likely that Starin has not money enough to secure their services again, at least he has never yet been able to hire the same band twice.

Well, the boat starts, so does the band and so do the boys' lungs, the latter to announce to all New York and a portion of the state of New Jersey that the tenth annual excursion of the newsboys is in progress. The first subject to engage the boys' attention is the band, who are playing "Mikado" airs. The 350 resolve themselves into a musical committee to instruct the band as to their wishes. "None of your hifalutin music, give us jigs and 45' waltzes or we'll throw you overboard," is the way their request is put. The band find it polite to obey and the boys dance in pairs. Waltzing is what they called it, though wrestling would be the better name.

Then a strong man rolls out on the deck the first of eleven barrels of yellow paper bags. Each boy receives a bag containing a bun, a spice cake, two doughnuts, a sandwich and two sections of the destructive bakers' pie. These are disposed of as follows: The pie is first gobbled, the sandwich follows and then the doughnuts. Then trouble begins for the band.

TROUBLE FOR THE BAND.
The rest of the lunch is stowed in the pockets or inside the shirt, the paper bag is inflated and burst, then pressed into a wall and thrown into the yawning openings of the musicians' brass instruments. From that time until the boat lands the air is full of flying buns, doughnuts and even chunks of pie. Before the boat touches the landing 100 boys are overboard to get ahead of it by swimming. How the boys spend their time on shore must be imagined. For a half hour before the boat starts to return the whistle is blown at intervals, but notwithstanding that precaution it is found by actual count that some half dozen boys are left to find their way back to New York as best they can. Two policemen accompany the expedition to preserve the peace. And a strong man is towed in a rowboat after the barge, to pick up the boys as they fall or are thrown overboard by their companions.

AN INTERESTING NONAGENARIAN.

When the Duke de Persigny had every official honor which Napoleon III. could bestow upon him, and was to boot rich and the husband of one of the prettiest ladies in Paris, he said to the Emperor: "You have made me a duke, a senator, an ambassador, a grand cross of the Legion of Honor, a member of the Council of Regency, and a great landed proprietor, but there is one thing you can't do for me." "What is it?" "You can't make me the master of an old servant born in my father's house." A bourgeois named Leroy, who owns a house in the Rue de Charonne, has what the Duke de Persigny sighed to obtain. His concierge, who was born in 1795, was the child of his great grandfather's cook, who was appointed by him to act as doorkeeper in the same apartment in 1776, the year in which it was built. She is Mme. Nau, and stepped into the shoes of her parents. She has been concierge in the Leroy family fifty-six years, and the services of herself and father and mother in the same capacity embraces a period of 110 years. The inhabitants of Charonne have signed a petition asking the Minister of the Interior to grant a medal to the interesting nonagenarian. —Paris Cor. New York Tribune.

BIG MEN!

One by One They Join the Dead.

Hubert O. Thompson at the Head of the New York County Democracy is Gone.

He was Found Dead in His Bed this Morning—The News About the City.

DEATH OF A POLITICIAN.

Hubert C. Thompson Found Dead in Bed.

NEW YORK, July 26.—There is great excitement around the City hall because of the rumor of the death of Hubert O. Thompson, leader of the county democracy, the telephone and telegraph being used freely in all directions.

LATER.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Hubert O. Thompson was found dead in his bed this morning at the Worth house in the Madison square. His room was visited at 10 a. m., by his physician, Dr. Roberts, who had stepped in the parlor near at hand. He had last seen Thompson alive at about 4 o'clock this morning, the latter being in bed at that hour. There was then no apprehension of a fatal result of his illness. Thompson was found lying on his right side with his knees drawn up, the pupils of his eyes were dilated and blood-shot and his face and neck were livid. The immediate cause of his death was cerebral apoplexy.

Rain at Last.

MILWAUKEE, July 26.—Last night a heavy storm raged and lasted nearly all night. The rain is reported to be quite general throughout the state and will save the crops in many directions. Most deplorable stories of drouth came from all directions during the last few days.

KING GEORGE, of Greece, who is said to be tired of his throne, is one of the most popular monarchs in Europe. He is a son of the King of Denmark, and has always sighed after the climate and scenes of his northern home. For the first few years of his reign he was specially inconsiderable for the lack of skating facilities, but finally had a roller skating-rink erected near the royal stables. Every evening at 6 o'clock he dons his roller-skates, and, accompanied by Queen Olga, gives himself up to his favorite sport for half an hour. Her Majesty frequently joins him in his amusement, and excels him in skill and dash. Only a privileged few are allowed to witness this royal recreation. After their skating bout their Majesties hasten to the palace and dine with their entourage, but occasionally en famille.

A CURIOUS animal of the cat species is owned by a Philadelphia family. It has no claws nor tail, and the hind legs are considerably longer than the fore ones. This necessarily renders it unable to walk or run like the ordinary cat, and its volition is by short jumps, after the manner of a rabbit. There is nothing, however, to suggest its being a cross between a rabbit and a cat, and, though the structure of the hind legs somewhat resembles that of the former, it does not appear to be anything beyond an unmistakable freak of feline nature. It has all the instincts of the domestic cat and made its debut as a mouser a few days ago.

THE woodlands of Louisiana are fast passing into the hands of Northern men. Four years ago a number of shrewd Western capitalists sent their agents down there to examine the Southern pine, to see what kind of lumber it would make, and the quality of the woodlands. These agents made a thorough examination at a minimum cost, and sent back the most favorable reports, urging the firms they represented to make purchases. The result has been that up to July 1, 1886, 1,150,532 acres, mainly of pine lands, had been bought at $1.25 an acre, about one-half of all the Government land in the State, and nearly one-quarter of the area covered by the long-leaf pine. This is all picked land, and though only one-fourth of the area, contains half the merchantable long-leaf pine timber in Louisiana.

There are 400,000 teachers in the United States about 290,000 schools. Consequently 110,000 teachers must live in hopes during the year. Each of the idle ones firmly believe that "for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen school board is peculiar."

J. L. Cox, who started the Lafayette Call, was ten years ago solicitor for the Lafayette Journal. While in that position it occurred to him to make a cylinder press that would print an impression for every movement of the bed plate, thus doubling the capacity of the press. All these years he has worked on that idea, until now he has finally brought it into successful execution. After selling the Call last year he moved to Battle Creek, Mich., where a company was formed which is now engaged in the manufacture of the press. The Grand Rapids Democrat is now printed on the first one produced, and the invention promises to revolutionize the business. It is a Webb perfecting press, printing both sides at once, and is adjustable, being fitted to print any sized paper up to the width of the cylinder. The most remarkable feature of the invention is the device for turning the sheet so as to meet the form on the return of the bed; but this cannot be explained without the use of a cut.

MISS CLEVELAND has now assumed editorial management of a Chicago monthly, and is attending to her editorial duties at her summer residence, "The Weeds," at Holland Patent, Oneida County, N. Y. She will not go to Chicago until September. The publisher of the monthly has already learned that Miss Cleveland is a lady who knows her own mind, and who is no respecter of the whims or ideas of publishers or business managers. Firstly, she insisted that all advertisements should be submitted to her for approval or rejection, and the result is that several present and prospective advertising patrons of the paper have had their matter for the August number rejected. Miss Cleveland began by casting out all quack advertisements, such as those relating to patent complexion powders, wrinkle-removers, cosmetics, beautifying elixirs, etc., and followed this up by canceling the contracts for full-page "ads" relating to patent medicines. When the publisher completed the agreement by which he secured Miss Cleveland's services, he tried to persuade her to allow her name to be printed on the title-page of the periodical. Miss Cleveland objected to her name appearing on any part of the paper, on the ground that the publication should stand or fall on its own merits, without the adventitious aid which her name and position might chance to give it. He dropped the matter there, but subsequently concocted a wily plan to get Miss Cleveland's name on the cover, her objections notwithstanding. So he paid an artist $75 for a new and pretty design for a title-page, in which the words, "Edited by Miss Cleveland," appeared in minute form on a flowing scroll. He sent her a copy of the design, fully expecting the artistic character of the work would overcome her objections to notoriety, and by return mail got a rather tart note from the lady, saying in substance: "My name shall not appear—this is final." Then he and an artist concocted a plan for the issue of Miss Cleveland's picture in the form of a large engraving, such as the large picture of Mrs. Cleveland, nee Folsom, which adorns so many store windows. Miss Cleveland decidedly objected. Again, the publisher, when printing her letter-heads for editorial correspondence, according to a form she sent him, wrote a long letter, asking permission to leave out "The Weeds," or else that Miss Cleveland would change the name of her residence. She merely replied: "The Weeds" it will remain.

Sam Jones will be at Rome City on August 4th.

The North Side Chicago Street Car Company Threatened With Another Strike.

THE ANARCHISTS' TRIAL.

The Noose is Tightening Around Their Throats.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Detective Jansen is the only one of five of Pinkerton's oldest officers who were put to work early last winter to find out how much the anarchist crowd actually meant by their speeches, and who in the prosecution of their work, penetrated the anarchists' dens and took part in their most secret conclaves, listened to their instructions to their dupes and reported to Mr. W. A. Pinkerton, their employer. Pinkerton has been employed by a party of large property holders in the city to make investigation and furnish information obtained as he got it. His men were not employed to secure conviction. They were instructed to report facts simply as they found them. A. C. Janson took the stand first and the cross examination was resumed by Mr. Foster, who asked concerning the witness' version of the conversation which took place between him and an aged gentleman on the occasion of the parade, Decoration day, last year. Spies, looking at the militia, said they would not amount to much in the event of a riot. That a half dozen bombs and scatter the soldiers in all directions. The witness said that May 31, 1885, Fielden made a speech, declaring that the government could be overthrown by force only and on another occasion Fielden told the witness a force was to be used May 1st, this year. August 19 Parsons was speaking of the street car men's strike and said that if Inspector Bonfield was shot the social revolution would be inaugurated.

Further testimony was given as to the utterances in public meetings of Parsons, Spies and Fielden.

Embezzles Public Funds at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Col. W. H. Bolton, chief of a division for handling second class matter in the Chicago postoffice, was arrested shortly after noon to-day, charged with the embezzlement of public funds, by means of false returns. The postoffice inspector claims to have traced a shortage of $4,600 from Nov. 1884 to Nov. 1885, and intimates the total shortage to be from $50,000 to $100,000 of the public funds.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, 12th District,
HON. ROBERT LOWRY, of Allen.

Mrs. LIVERMORE is yet firm in her belief in co-operative housekeeping. She thinks that isolated housekeeping must be merged into co-operative housekeeping, in order that housewives, obliged, by the increasing demands of the nineteenth century life, to be "Jacks at all trades and good at none," may have time and strength to prepare themselves for the higher social, intellectual, and benevolent demands made upon them.

The bad little boy of Rome, N. Y., has invented a machine for scaring timid persons, that he says "knocks the window tick-tack silly." When night has come and everything is shrouded in gloom, he quietly inserts the hook of a common shoe-buttoner under a clap-board of a neighbor's house, ties a strong cord to the handle of the buttoner, and then, drawing the string tight, rubs it with a piece of resin. The horrible rumbling, and shaking, and groaning that follow scare the inmates of the house and delight the bad boy.

LAND surveying in New Jersey has not arrived at perfection. Philander Brown, a surveyor of much note in the Mosquito State, was asked during a recent land suit at Camden, how much land the plaintiff received in excess of what he was legally entitled to, and responded: "Five rows of blackberries." Court, jury, and counsel enjoyed the sarcasm on the accuracy of the land measurement which the answer contained. Judge Parker asked next what "a row of blackberries was equivalent to in inches," to which Mr. Brown returned, "Seven feet in Jersey always." It was testified that the land had been surveyed with a chain one of the links of which had been lengthened several inches.

The history of John Lannon, of Alexandria, Va., who recently died, is worth repeating. He came from Ireland with his mother when a child, and early had to work for a living. He got a place in the store of Joseph Brothers, who, when the Federal troops occupied Alexandria in 1861, ran away, leaving young Lannon, then 16 years old, in charge. Brothers hoped that the boy would sell the goods in stock and make an honest return of the proceeds; he was therefore much surprised when he returned at the end of three years to find that John had increased the business, had on hand a larger stock of goods than when Brothers ran away, and had made $6,000, which he had in bank. The merchant gave young Lannon half the money and took him into partnership, and before he died John had accumulated $100,000, built the opera-house at Alexandria and the largest wharf there, and was one of the most respected citizens of the town.

A SINGULAR accident happened recently to sawyer named Flynn, employed in a logging camp on the Snohomish River, Wyoming Territory. Flynn was engaged in sawing near a fellow-workman who was using a steel wedge and a sledge, splitting timber. As the latter struck the wedge a blow, a small piece of steel flew off, and flying in Flynn's direction, hit him in the throat, cutting an ugly gash through his windpipe and lodging in the bronchial tube. The effect was that Flynn could not breathe, on account of the obstruction, for a short time. He was seized with a violent fit of coughing almost immediately, however, during which the steel was thrown out and the injured man quickly regained his breath. On examination of the wound it was found that in breathing, the air, instead of coming in Flynn's mouth, entered the aperture made by the steel.

A BOSTON letter to the Baltimore American says: "Not one-third of John L. Sullivan's scrapes have ever been made public. For two years after he gained his fame by vanquishing Ryan the newspapers of this, his native place, gave no publicity to the numerous outrages he committed. It was argued that he was young and inexperienced, and would improve when he grew older. So he went on. Finally, one day, when he kicked his wife nearly to death at their rooms in Lovering place, Colonel George Eland, of the Globe, wrote a scathing account of the affair, and the Globe printed it. Sullivan said nothing but the Colonel's blood would satisfy him. So, with three or four of his chosen friends, he strode into the Globe editorial-rooms, and demanded either a retraction and an apology from the paper or the production of the man who wrote the offensive article. At this juncture out strode the Colonel, cocked pistol in hand, and asked Sullivan if he desired anything from him. The slugger evidently did not, as he and his cohorts slunk down the stairs. From that day to the present time the reporters have written up nearly all of the disgraceful actions of which he has been guilty."

THEY do queer things sometimes in Sunday-schools. In an Eastern Sunday-school not long ago a dramatic performance entitled "Joseph and His Brethren" was given. The "brethren" were noticeable for their gorgeous but impossible costumes, and Joseph, dressed in a crazy quilt, was taken up from a pew which represented a pit. In another Sunday-school recently, a boy was strapped to a bench, and the Superintendent pointed to him as "Isaac just about to be offered up." It would be well for the Sunday-school assemblies this summer to discuss the variety of these performances.

CLAY ALLISON, a Las Vegas cowboy, or, as his advancing years demand, cowman, sold a lot of steers at Cheyenne at a good profit, and then went to a dentist to get an aching tooth attended to. The dentist, seeing a chance to make something, bored a hole in a sound tooth of Clay's and attempted to fill it, but, being a bungler, broke the tooth. Allison got mad and went to another dentist, who told him he had been the victim of a quack. The cowboy went back to the first dentist, picked up a pair of forceps, knocked him down, yanked his mouth open, jerked out a sound double tooth, grabbed for another, caught a front tooth and a piece of the upper lip, and was tugging away at these when the shrieks of the quack drew a crowd, who took the enraged cattleman off, and ended the performance.

WHY IT PAYS TO READ.
One's physical frame—his body, his muscles, his feet, his hands—is only a living machine. It is mind, controlling and directing that machine, that gives it power and efficacy. The successful use of the body depends wholly upon the mind—upon its ability to direct the will. If one ties his arm in a sling it becomes weak and finally powerless. Keep it in active exercise, and it acquires vigor and strength, and is disciplined to use this strength as desired; just as one's mind by active exercise in thinking, reasoning, planning, studying, observing, acquires vigor, strength, power of concentration and direction.

Plainly, then, the man who exercises his mind in reading and thinking gives it increased power and efficiency, and greater ability to direct the efforts of his physical frame—his work—to better results than he can who merely or mainly uses his muscles. If a man reads a book or paper, even one he knows to be erroneous, it helps him by the efforts to combat the errors. The combat invigorates his mind. Of all men, the farmer, the cultivator, needs to read more to strengthen his reasoning powers, so that they may help out and make more effective, more profitable, his hard toil. There can be no doubt that the farmer who supplies himself with the most reading—the most of other men's thoughts and experiences—will in the end, if not at once, be the most successful.

100 Doses One Dollar.
Is inseparably connected with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. It is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy, while thousands testify to its superior blood-purifying and strengthening qualities. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence, for economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

For over a quarter of a century Physicians have prescribed NICHOLS' BARK AND IRON, as a reliable and valuable remedy for dyspepsia and general debility.

sides the Lutherans of Fort Wayne, hundreds of farmers of neighboring townships, with their families, were present. The services commenced at 10 o'clock a. m. and were conducted by Rev. Mr. Gross, of the Emanuel's church. Rev. Mr. Stock, of Adams township, preached in the afternoon,
and Rev. Mr. Kahler, of Fort Wayne, held the concluding sermon. Parties who could not go home at noon were served a nice dinner at Concordia hall for a small sum. The collection resulted in about $800 and the expenses were about $100, so that the surplus, which is to be used for the education of students, amounts to $700.

will give a grand exhibition on the lakes.

Pat McDonald, the genial clerk of the water works department, is a papa. It is the handsomest boy baby on earth, and Mr. McDonald is just too proud to talk about it. Everybody gets water free this month—in fact nothing is too good for his friends, and he has lots of them.

The Nemaha county (Ark.) Republican has this complimentary notice:
"Prof. A. J. Critchett, of Fort Wayne, Ind., came out to attend the national teachers' institute at Topeka, and from there came over to make a short visit to his sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Head, near this city. The professor is a ripe scholar and a polished gentleman, and we would like to see the way open for him to locate in Kansas at an early day."

FRIGHTFUL CASUALTY.

Engineer Mart Burke Killed in a Collision of the Limited Ex- press at Valparaiso.

Mr. and Mrs. Mart Burke lived in a neat cottage home on Douglass avenue, where now hangs crape. This morning before 5 o'clock, Mr. Burke said goodbye to his wife and kissed his baby child.
He was to run the limited express No. 5
from Fort Wayne to Chicago. The passenger pulled out of the south depot at 5:45, with Engineer Burke at the throttle and Fireman A. Pelz with his hand on the bell rope. The train flew along and at 8 o'clock went into Valparaiso with a rush. Quicker by half than it takes to describe it, the engine flew the main track at the station and smashed into a coal car just run on to the side track by a local freight train. The engine made an awful lunge for the car ahead of it, but the crash was too sudden and the baggage car behind leaped the tender
and wedged itself into the engine cab, crushing the brave engineer and inflicting injuries from which he instantly died.

Since the above report came the accounts of Mr. Burke's death are in conflict. M. H. Quinlan, agent of the Catholic Universe, of Cleveland, was on the train and interviewed the fireman,
Mr. Pelz. Below is his statement:

Fireman Pelz tells the story of the awful accident: "Mr. Burke said 'jump,' as he put on the air brakes. We were crossing the open switch at that time and both turned to leave the cab. We ran together and I threw myself out on a pile of cinders. I suppose Burke jumped from the other side [and was hurled out onto a pile of steel rails,
because his skull was seemingly crushed
on them."

The railroad authorities say that Mr.
Burke was killed in his cab, and backlit
with the fact that his neck was broken,
besides the back portion of his skull being crushed in. They believe the tender caught him before he had his hand off the throttle. The fact of blood and brain matter being scattered over rails near the wreck makes the other theory equally plausible.

The conductor of the local freight train and his men will have to explain the negligence and when they saw the collision, some of them turned pale as death. They opened the switch that led to the untimely death of Mart Burke.

Mr. John H. Bass and Mr. Wm. P.
Breen were on the train and wired the sad news here. They stood by and saw strong arms release Burke's body, and such a sight they never witnessed before. The thought of him leaving a bright home, and his valor and bravery made his death doubly sad. He was always fearless and the company prized him as one of their truest men. His wife is almost crazed with grief, and a host of friends mourn the loss of a true,
kind hearted gentleman with her.

Mr. Burke's injuries are about the head and his skull was horribly disfigured. There were sad scenes at his home, and his little son, Robert Emmet Burke would vainly try to appease the heart broken wife by talking to his papa's picture and saying, "Mamma, he is not dead." The remains will arrive here to-night at 7:45 and they will probably be taken to Louisville for burial to-morrow morning. Mr. Burke was born at Madison, Ind., but married his wife
at Louisville and it is there her relatives live. He was insured in the New Orleans branch of the Engineer Brotherhood for $3,000 and held a similar policy in the St. Julian branch Catholic Benevolent Legion. He was insured in another company, but its name is not known.

There will be a meeting of the Brotherhood of Engineers at 5 o'clock this afternoon and they will have charge of Mr. Burke's funeral. The St. Julian council will take action to-night.

CROOKED WORK.

A Daring Attempt to Rob the Residence of Prof. W. S. Heath—Other Rascal- ities.

Last night thieves were discovered in the residence of Prof. W. S. Heath, on Griffith street. A neighbor gave the alarm and yelled "police!" At this the rascals fled through the windows and escaped, although in five minutes two hundred people were gathered about the premises. Prof. Heath and family are in the east, near Boston. There were three men in their house and at the moment of the discovery they were mootly packing up the articles of value and small house hold goods. The purpose was to cart them away and leave the house empty. Officer Sheridan hastily responded from his Calhoun street beat, but then the robbers were a safe distance away. This is one of the coolest jobs on record and one that might be consummated nine times out of ten as a light and stirring about the house is not calculated to attract much attention, especially Sunday evening.

Mrs. Self, who keeps a second-hand store on Calhoun street, discovered a man climbing over a porch to the second floor. She shot at the intruder and he dropped to the earth and fled.

Mr. T. S. Murray, of Spencerville, DeKalb county, was in the city to-day
and related particulars of a robbery
there Saturday night. Jacob Baltz, jr., discovered two men stealing goods from Barney & Erick's dry goods store. He shot at them and gave chase, but the men got away. Two suspicious characters were traced to the farm house of Wm. Knight and there their trunks and tools were found. Shortly after the men were discovered in a stable and were taken to Spencerville and given separate trials. One man, named Read, confessed and told where the goods stolen from Barney & Erick's were concealed.
The other man broke down when he heard of this and then the men were taken to Auburn and locked up. There have been a number of robberies up that way and the people are rejoicing over the catch.

The residence of T. N. McNear at Churubusco, was robbed of $107 a few nights ago by burglars.

INFAMOUS ARSON.

Wm. Hewitt Arrested for an At- tempt to Burn the Hat Store of Kyle & Reid.

Last evening Wm. Hewitt, who keeps a bed spring and novelty store on the east side of Calhoun street, a few doors
south of the Washington house, accosted Officer Lee on his Calhoun street patrole.

Said Hewitt: "Lee, do you want to make some money?"

"That's what we are all after," remarked Lee as he sized Hewitt up.

Hewitt continued: "I'll tell you now on the square. I am to get $100 for setting fire to the hat store of Kyle & Reid,
on Calhoun street and will divide if you help me. Reid is at Chicago and gave me his key to do the work. I will go into the store at 2 o'clock and I want you to watch closely, so that when the blaze starts you can give the alarm. I don't want to burn the place, but to have the firemen destroy the goods with water so Read can get the insurance."

These words fell on Officer Lee's ears
like lead, but he held his own counsel and remarked, "all right."
He related to Captain Diehl and Lieutenant Wilkinson his story, but so audacious was the proposition that they would not credit it. However, Officer Lee and Lieutenant Wilkinson watched the place.

True to his word Hewitt made his appearance at 2 o'clock. He entered the store, but so did Officer Lee. Not stopping to question the policeman again,
Hewitt deliberately began spilling coal oil over everything in the store. He took a hat box, stuffed paper into it and saturated the contents with oil. He lighted a short candle and stood it in the box. This was to ignite the paper in a few moments and consummate the devilish work. Hewitt stepped outside the store and locked the door, only to be nailed to the front by the officer, who wrenched from his hands the key.
Lieut. Frank Wilkinson opened the store, pitched the candle into the street
and stopped a fire.

Hewitt is agent for the Fowler Manufacturing company, but sells rugs and is into other snaps for a living. He was locked up and this morning Captain Diehl took him to jail. Hewitt alleged that Reid employed him and then with his clerk left for Chicago Saturday night. Said he, "Reid is almost bankrupt any how," and the scheme was to have the clerk, who is innocent, come home and find the store burned and then telegraph Reid.

This is the story of Hewitt and the crime charged to him. His wife went to his cell this morning and wept as though her heart would break.

Fred C. Read is a member of the firm of Kyle & Reid. He boards at No.
92 West Berry street, and his version of the story is eagerly awaited. He may be able to explain away the insane and almost incredible story related by Hewitt.

FORT WAYNE.

Two Pretty Girls From Illinois Describe Their Visit Here.

A few weeks ago THE SENTINEL noted
the presence here of the Misses Knoles, daughters of Editor S. S. Knoles, of the Petersburg (Ill.) Herald. The young ladies were very pretty and attracted so much attention, that this letter from them will interest: "We were now in the state of Indiana and arrived at Fort Wayne at 5 o'clock a. m.; being so tired and dusty we concluded we would not take the first train but take the one in the afternoon. We repaired to the hotel, and after refreshing ourselves with a nice warm breakfast and removing considerable dust, we decided to see the city. We viewed the principal streets and buildings, visited the daily SENTINEL printing office and inspected the several departments. The press room proved to be the most interesting. It contains several presses, and one especially to print the papers on; all run by steam. The press used for newspaper purposes is the Campbell, and we admire it very much, as it was the first one of the kind we had ever seen, but so often read of. Among the job presses were the Davis, Potter and Gordon. They have, also, a folding machine and it was indeed a marvelous sight, to us, how fast it could fold the papers. The gentlemen of the establishment were gentlemanly and very pleasant, showing us the workings of all the machinery, and we truly appreciated their kindness.

We called at one of the leading dry goods houses and were shown through the store by polite and obliging clerks.
The next place we visited was the postoffice; the building is just a common frame one. Among the buildings we saw, the court house was the most magnificent and elegant structure, and is surrounded by a beautiful park. A marble statue of Washington is standing on the front of this temple of justice. We observed that there were large number of machine shops at that place."

The Chicago Sanitary News says.
"Mr. James Madden and Mr. W. D.
Cox, two prominent journeyman plumbers of Fort Wayne, Ind., have gone into the business of plumbing, steam and gas fitting at 73 Calhoun street in that city. Mr. Madden is a gentleman of ripe experience and a thorough master of the trade. They were in the city Saturday purchasing supplies and called at the office of the Sanitary News."

Tales from the Fishery Region.

There is Great Scarcity of Food and Men, Women and Children Are Starving to Death.

A Party of Desperate Esquimos Come in to Fight for Food.

STARVING TO DEATH.

A Pitiful Tale of Want and Misery Among Fishermen.

St. John, N. F., July 26.—The particulars of the distress among the fishermen of Labrador have been received. Seventy Esquimos, who demanded food from the stores at Muford, which could not be given to them owing to the needs of the inhabitants and the small supply, made a rush for the harbor store house where flour and fish were stored. The men of the small settlement gathered to defend their only hope of existence, and a desperate fight ensued in which four of the marauding Esquimos were nearly killed and two of the store house defenders seriously injured. The Esquimos, finding they could not obtain food by force, retreated and sent in several of their number to ask for a small quantity of food which they said was absolutely necessary to the continued existence of their wives and children. Two hundred pounds of flour and about fifty pounds of frozen cod fish were given them. It was reported that in Astoria alone, out of thirty-five or forty families, or a total of 200 persons, over 100 had died, mostly women and children. In Nain the catch of fish has not been sufficient to afford food to the inhabitants.

A Wife Attempts Suicide.

WABASH, Ind., July 26.—A fatal family row occurred yesterday at Lafontaine, a small town in the southern part of this county. While Mr. and Mrs. Henry White were eating dinner, the pair became engaged in an altercation, which ended by White giving his wife a cruel whipping. Crazed by his treatment, the miserable woman seized a knife from the table and cut a huge gash in her throat, which the physicians think will prove fatal. She is still alive at last reports, but sinking.

The State Encampment.

LAFAYETTE, July 25.—Everybody is on the qui vive for the state encampment which begins to-day. Among the arrivals are Captain Leach's artillery, of Attica, the Indianapolis light artillery, the Fort Wayne rifles, company L of Second regiment; Richardson Zouaves, of Indianapolis; the Logansport Grays and the Emmet Guards, Rice Zouaves, and company A, light infantry, all three are from Indianapolis.

The Sangerfest.

MILWAUKEE, July 26.—The Sangerfest at Milwaukee concluded Sunday with a street parade and picnic which was attended by 30,000 people who witnessed an elaborate pyrotechnic display. The receipts were $10,000 less than the expenses but the deficit will be covered by a guarantee fund. St. Louis was selected as the city where the next Sangerfest is to be held.

Maud S on the Track.

New York, July 26.—John Murphy took his weekly trip up to Robert Boner's farm near Tarrytown Saturday, to give Maud S a spin in the course of her regular work, in preparation for the coming trial. He let her out for a quarter of a mile and she trotted true as a die in 30 1/2 seconds. A 2:02 gate.

The young son of George Heffner, of Ligonier, who was wounded several weeks ago by the accidental discharge of a target gun, died of injuries yesterday. Inflammation set in and could not be controlled, and death resulted from lockjaw.

Why the "Royal" is the Best.

The improved method by which it has been made possible to produce pure cream of tartar, has had an important bearing upon the manufacture of baking powder. By the process heretofore generally employed, it has been found impossible to remove all impurities, more particularly the tartrate of lime, which remained to such an extent as to greatly impair the quality of the cream of tartar, and to interfere seriously with the strength and wholesomeness of the baking powders into which it entered. In the new process, which is owned by the Royal Baking Powder Company of New York, and exclusively employed in its extensive tartar works, the imported crude tartar is so treated as to remove all vestige of tartrate of lime or other impurities, giving a product before unknown—a chemically pure cream of tartar.

By the employment of these superior facilities, the Royal Baking Powder company has made the Royal Baking Powder, as the chemists all certify, of the highest possible degree of strength, "absolutely pure" and wholesome, and with an always uniform leavening power. It is for these reasons that the "Royal" never fails to produce bread, biscuits, cakes, etc., that are light, sweet, digestible, and wholesome; the eating of which is never followed by indigestion, or any of those physical discomforts attendant upon the partaking of improperly prepared food. In rendering possible the production of a baking powder possessed of these qualifications, the improved method of refining cream of tartar becomes at once a matter of material importance to the culinary world. d&w

An Alaska traveler who has seen something of the Arctic mosquitoes, describes some of their characteristics. "Why, sir," he exclaimed, "they even kill bears. Now, it seems strange that a mosquito could kill a bear, but this is the way it is done. The bears come down from the hills into the marshlands to feed on roots and berries—a part of cranberry found there. As soon as they get comfortably to work the mosquitoes attack them and go for their eyes. The bears get up on their hind legs to fight them off, and sink into the swamp. The mosquitoes, which are of a most extraordinary size, keep at them until they are totally blind, and then they have them completely at their mercy. I have seen over a dozen bear carcasses in those swamps, positively killed by the mosquitoes."

NEWSBOYS LET LOOSE.

An Excursion in Which Pandemonium and Howling Rave Are Nowhere. The New York newsboy's lot is not a happy one at best. From rough usage at the hands of his parents, when he is burdened with any, to the rougher treatment of his own set in the streets he acquires a warlike spirit which fears only the "cop" and the police justice. Might is right with him, and he is a docile only when dealing with a customer or in the presence of a stronger antagonist. There is one day in the year though, when all restraint is removed and he, or several hundred of them, are allowed to let themselves loose.

This red letter day in the newsboy's life is on the occasion of the excursion granted him each year by John H. Starin. It came off the other day, and the program varied little from previous years. First the largest double deck barge in the harbor of New York is made ready at a dock early in the morning, but no earlier than the boys begin to swarm toward it. Each gamine has secured a free ticket days before the event, on his proving that he was an all-wood newsboy and at least a yard in length. A squad of police are on hand to prevent bloodshed, and keep the boys from going in swimming off the dock. There are from 500 to 800 of them, and the pandemonium they keep up could not be described. After an hour or so of waiting the order is given to go on board, and then a scramble commences to get them in line so as to get them on board Indian file. Those not possessing tickets are weeded out, leaving 350 to go on board. In the meantime a band of nine brave musicians have taken their lives in their hands and trusted themselves to the mercy of the boys later on. But they are a green band; they have never furnished music to a newsboy's excursion before, and it is likely that Starin has not money enough to secure their services again, at least he has never yet been able to hire the same band twice.

Well, the band starts, so does the band and so do the boys' lungs, the latter to announce to all New York and a portion of the state of New Jersey that the tenth annual excursion of the newsboys is in progress. The first subject to engage the boys' attention is the band, who are playing "Mikado" music, give us jigs and 45' waltzes or we'll throw you overboard," is the way their request is put. The band find it politic to obey and the boys dance in pairs. Waiting is what they called it, though wrestling would be the better name. Then a strong man rolls out on the deck the first of eleven barrels of yellow paper bags. Each boy receives a bag containing a bun, a slice cake, two doughnuts, a sandwich and two sections of the destructive baker's pie. These are disposed of as follows: The pie is first gobbled, the sandwich follows and then the doughnuts. Then trouble begins for the band.

TROUBLE FOR THE BAND.

The rest of the lunch is stowed in the pockets or inside the shirt, the paper bag is inflated and burst, then pressed into a wad and thrown into the yawning openings of the musicians' brass instruments. From that time until the boat lands the air is full of flying buns, doughnuts and even chunks of pie. Before the boat touches the landing 100 boys are overhead to get ahead of it by swimming. When the boys spend their time on shore must be imagined. For a half hour before the boat starts to return the whistle is blown at intervals, but notwithstanding that precaution it is found by actual count that some half dozen boys are left to find their way back to New York as best they can. Two policemen accompany the expedition to preserve the peace, and a strong man is towed in a rowboat after the barge, to pick up the boys as they fall or are thrown overboard by their companions.

AN INTERESTING NONAGENARY.

When the Duke de Persigny had every official honor which Napoleon III. could bestow upon him, and was to boot rich and the husband of one of the prettiest ladies in Paris, he said to the Emperor: "You have made me a duke, a senator, an ambassador, a grand cross of the Legion of Honor, a member of the Council of Regency, and a great landed proprietor, but there is one thing you can't do for me." "What is it?" "You can't make me the master of an old servant born in my father's house." A bourgeois named Leroy, who owns a house in the Rue de Charonne, has what the Duke de Persigny sighed to obtain. His concierge, who was born in 1776, was the child of his great grandfather's cook, who was appointed by him to act as doorman in the same tenement in 1771, the year in which it was built. She is Mme. Nau, and stepped into the shoes of her parents. She has been concierge in the Leroy family fifty-six years, and the services of herself and father and mother in the same capacity embrace a period of 110 years. The inhabitants of Charonne have signed a petition asking the Minister of the Interior to grant a medal to the interesting nonagenarian. —Paris Cor. New York Tribune.

BIG MEN!

One by One They Join the Dead.

Robert O. Thompson at the Head of the New York County Democracy Is Gone.

He was Found Dead in His Bed this Morning—The News About the City.

DEATH OF A POLITICIAN.

Hubert O. Thompson Found Dead in Bed.

New York, July 26.—There is great excitement around the City hall because of the rumor of the death of Hubert O. Thompson, leader of the county democracy, the telephone and telegraph being used freely in all directions.

LATER.

New York, July 26.—Hubert O. Thompson was found dead in his bed this morning at the Worth house in the Madison square. His room was visited at 10 a. m., by his physician, Dr. Roberts, who had stepped in the parlor near at hand. He had last seen Thompson alive at about 4 o'clock this morning, the latter being in bed at that hour. There was then no apprehension of a fatal result of his illness. Thompson was found lying on his right side with his knees drawn up, the pupils of his eyes were dilated and blood-shot and his face and neck were livid. The immediate cause of his death was cerebral apoplexy.

Rain at Last.

MILWAUKEE, July 26.—Last night a heavy storm raged and lasted nearly all night. The rain is reported to be quite general throughout the state and will save the crops in many directions. Most deplorable stories of drought came from all directions during the last few days.

KING GEORGE, of Greece, who is said to be tired of his throne, is one of the most popular monarchs in Europe. He is a son of the King of Denmark, and has always sighed after the climate and pleasures of his northern home. For the first few years of his reign he was especially inconsiderable for the lack of skating facilities, but finally had a roller skating rink erected near the royal stables. Every evening at 8 o'clock he dons his roller-skates, and, accompanied by Queen Olga, gives himself up to his favorite sport for half an hour. Her Majesty frequently joins him in his amusement, and excels him in skill and dash. Only a privileged few are allowed to witness this royal recreation. After their skating bout their Majesties hasten to the palace and dine with their entourage, but occasionally on family.

A curious animal of the cat species is owned by a Philadelphia family. It has no claws nor tail, and the hind legs are considerably longer than the fore ones. This necessarily renders it unable to walk or run like the ordinary cat, and its volition is by short jumps, after the manner of a rabbit. There is nothing, however, to suggest its being a cross between a rabbit and a cat, and, though the structure of the hind legs somewhat resembles that of the former, it does not appear to be anything beyond an unmistakable freak of feline nature. It has all the instincts of the domestic cat and made its debut as a mouser a few days ago.

The woodlands of Louisiana are fast passing into the hands of Northern men. Four years ago a number of shrewd Western capitalists sent their agents down there to examine the Southern pine, to see what kind of lumber it would make, and the quality of the woodlands. These agents made a thorough examination at a minimum cost, and sent back the most favorable reports, urging the firms they represented to make purchases. The result has been that up to July 1, 1886, 1,150,532 acres, mainly of pine lands, had been bought at $1.25 an acre, about one-half of all the Government land in the State, and nearly one-quarter of the area covered by the long-leaf pine. This is all picked land, and though only one-fourth of the area, contains half the merchantable long-leaf pine timber in Louisiana.

CHOICE BITS.

The News That is Cullied for the "Sentinel" Readers.

The Indianapolis Sentinel will soon put on a "new dress." The Sentinel is improving every day.

Sam Small will deliver an address at the annual temperance rally at Fairfield, Ind., August 7. Fifteen thousand people are expected to be present.

Miss Lou Goble, a domestic at the National hotel, Wabash, has been convicted of a long series of petty thefts.

The prohibitionists of LaGrange county have put in the field a full county ticket and expect to poll from three to four hundred votes. They exhibit considerable activity this year.

There are 400,000 teachers in the United States about 280,000 schools. Consequently 110,000 teachers must live in hopes during the year. Each of the idle ones firmly believe that "for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen school board is peculiar."

J. L. Cox, who started the Lafayette Call, was ten years ago solicitor for the Lafayette Journal. While in that position it occurred to him to make a cylinder press that would print an impression for every movement of the bed plate, thus doubling the capacity of the press. All these years he has worked on that idea, until now he has finally brought it into successful execution. After selling the Call last year he moved to Battle Creek, Mich., where a company was formed which is now engaged in the manufacture of the press. The Grand Rapids Democrat is now printed on the first one produced, and the invention promises to revolutionize the business. It is a Webb perfecting press, printing both sides at once, and is adjustable, being fitted to print any sized paper up to the width of the cylinder. The most remarkable feature of the invention is the device for turning the sheet so as to meet the form on the return of the bed; but this cannot be explained without the use of a cut.

MISS CLEVELAND has now assumed editorial management of a Chicago monthly, and is attending to her editorial duties at her summer residence, "The Woods," at Holland Patent, Oneida County, N. Y. She will not go to Chicago until September. The publisher of the monthly has already learned that Miss Cleveland is a lady who knows her own mind, and who is no respecter of the whims or ideas of publishers or business managers. First, she insisted that all advertisements should be submitted to her for approval or rejection, and the result is that several present and prospective advertising patrons of the paper have had their matter for the August number rejected. Miss Cleveland began by casting out all quack advertisements, such as those relating to patent complexion powders, wrinkle-removers, cosmetics, beautifying elixirs, etc., and followed this up by canceling the contracts for full-page "ads" relating to patent medicines. When the publisher completed the agreement by which he secured Miss Cleveland's services, he tried to persuade her to allow her name to be printed on the title-page of the periodical. Miss Cleveland objected to her name appearing on any part of the paper, on the ground that the publication should stand or fall on its own merits, without the adventitious aid which her name and position might chance to give it. He dropped the matter there, but subsequently concocted a wily plan to get Miss Cleveland's name on the cover, her objections notwithstanding. So he paid an artist $75 for a new and pretty design for a title-page, in which the words, "Edited by Miss Cleveland," appeared in minute form on a flowing scroll. He sent her a copy of the design, fully expecting the artistic character of the work would overcome her objections to notoriety, and by return mail got a rather tart note from the lady, saying in substance: "My name shall not appear—this is final." Then he and an artist concocted a plan for the issue of Miss Cleveland's picture in the form of a large engraving, such as the large picture of Mrs. Cleveland, nee Folson, which adorns so many store windows. Miss Cleveland decidedly objected. Again, the publisher, when printing her letter-heads for editorial correspondence, according to a form she sent him, wrote a long letter, asking permission to leave out "The Woods," or else that Miss Cleveland would change the name of her residence. She merely replied: "The Woods it will remain."

San Jose will be at Rome City on August 4th.

The Anarchist Trial is Sensational and Pinkerton's Anarchist Detectives Tell Their Tales.

The North Side Chicago Street Car Company Threatened With Another Strike.

THE ANARCHISTS' TRIAL.

The Noose is Tightening Around Their Throats.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Detective Jansen is the only one of five of Pinkerton's oldest officers who were put to work early last winter to find out how much the anarchist crowd actually meant by their speeches, and who in the prosecution of their work, penetrated the anarchists' dens and took part in their most secret conclaves, listened to their instructions to their dupes and reported to Mr. W. A. Pinkerton, their employer. Pinkerton has been "employed by a party of large property holders in the city to make investigation and furnish information obtained as he got it. His men were not employed to secure conviction. They were instructed to report facts simply as they found them. A. C. Janson took the stand first and the cross examination was resumed by Mr. Foster, who asked concerning the witness' version of the conversation which took place between him and an aged gentleman on the occasion of the parade, Decoration day, last year. Spies, looking at the militia, said they would not amount to much in the event of a riot. That a half dozen bombs and sentinels the soldiers in all directions. The witness said that May 31, 1885, Fielden made a speech, declaring that the government could be overthrown by force only and on another occasion. Fielden told the witness a force was to be used May 1st, this year. August 19 Parsons was speaking of the street carmen's strike and said that if Inspector Boufield was shot the social revolution would be inaugurated. Further testimony was given as to the utterances in public meetings of Parsons, Spies and Fielden.

A RASCAL

Embezzles Public Funds at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Col. W. H. Bolton, chief of a division for handling second class matter in the Chicago postoffice, was arrested shortly after noon to-day, charged with the embezzlement of public funds, by means of false returns. The postoffice inspector claims to have traced a shortage of $84,000 from Nov. 1884 to Nov. 1885, and intimates the total shortage to be from $50,000 to $100,000 of the public funds.

A Tie up Threatened.

MONDAY, JULY 26, 1886.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, 12th District,
HON. ROBERT LOWRY, of Allen.

Mrs. LIVERMORE is yet firm in her belief in co-operative housekeeping. She thinks that isolated housekeeping must be merged into co-operative housekeeping, in order that housewives, obliged, by the increasing demands of the nineteenth century life, to be "Jacks at all trades and good at none," may have time and strength to prepare themselves for the higher social, intellectual, and benevolent demands made upon them.

The bad little boy of Rome, N. Y., has invented a machine for searing timid persons, that he says "knocks the window tick-tack silly." When night has come and everything is shrouded in gloom, he quietly inserts the look of a common shoe-button under a clasp-board of a neighbor's house, ties a strong cord to the handle of the button, and then, drawing the string tight, rubs it with a piece of rosin. The horrible rumbling, and shaking, and groaning that follow scare the inmates of the house and delight the bad boy.

LAND surveying in New Jersey has not arrived at perfection. Philander Brown, a surveyor of much note in the Mosquito State, was asked during a recent land suit at Camden, how much land the plaintiff received in excess of what he was legally entitled to, and responded: "Five rows of blackberries." Court, jury, and counsel enjoyed this pun on the accuracy of the land measurement which the answer contained. Judge Parker asked next what "a row of blackberries was equivalent to in inches," to which Mr. Brown returned, "Seven feet in Jersey always." It was testified that the land had been surveyed with a chain one of the links of which had been lengthened several inches.

The history of John Lannon, of Alexandria, Va., who recently died, is worth repeating. He came from Ireland with his mother when a child, and early had to work for a living. He got a place in the store of Joseph Brothers, who, when the Federal troops occupied Alexandria in 1861, ran away, leaving young Lannon, then 16 years old, in charge. Brothers hoped that the boy would sell the goods in stock and make an honest return of the proceeds; he was therefore much surprised when he returned at the end of three years to find that John had increased the business, had on hand a larger stock of goods than when Brothers ran away, and had made $6,000, which he had in bank. The merchant gave young Lannon half the money and took him into partnership, and before he died John had accumulated $100,000, built the opera-house at Alexandria and the largest wharf there, and was one of the most respected citizens of the town.

A SINGULAR accident happened recently to sawyer named Flynn, employed in a logging camp on the Snake River, Wyoming Territory. Flynn was engaged in sawing near a fellow-workman who was using a steel wedge and a sledge, splitting timber. As the latter struck the wedge a blow, a small piece of steel flew off, and flying in Flynn's direction, hit him in the throat, cutting an ugly gash through his windpipe and lodging in the bronchial tube. The effect was that Flynn could not breathe, on account of the obstruction, for a short time. He was seized with a violent fit of coughing almost immediately, however, during which the steel was thrown out and the injured man quickly regained his breath. On examination of the wound it was found that in breathing, the air, instead of coming in Flynn's mouth, entered the aperture made by the steel.

A BOSTON letter to the Baltimore American says: "Not one-third of John I. Sullivan's scrapes have ever been made public. For two years after he gained his fame by vanquishing Ryan the newspapers of this, his native place, gave no publicity to the numerous outrages he committed. It was argued that he was young and inexperienced, and would improve when he grew older. So he went on. Finally, one day, when he kicked his wife nearly to death at their rooms in Lovers' Lane, Colonel George Elwood, of the Globe, wrote a scathing account of the affair, and the Globe printed it. Sullivan said nothing but the Colonel's blood would satisfy him. So, with three or four of his chosen friends, he strode into the Globe editorial-rooms, and demanded either a retraction and an apology from the paper or the production of the man who wrote the offensive article. At this juncture out strode the Colonel, cocked pistol in hand, and asked Sullivan if he desired anything from him. The slinger evidently did not, as he and his cohorts slunk down the stairs. From that day to the present time the reporters have written up nearly all of the disgraceful actions of which he has been guilty."

THEY do queer things sometimes in Sunday-schools. In an Eastern Sunday-school not long ago a dramatic performance entitled "Joseph and His Brethren" was given. The "brethren" were noticeable for their gorgeous but impossible costumes, and Joseph, dressed in a crazy quilt, was taken up from a pew which represented a pit. In another Sunday-school recently, a boy was strapped to a bench, and the Superintendent pointed to him as "Jesse just about to be offered up." It would be well for the Sunday-school assemblies this summer to discuss the propriety of these performances.

CLAY ALLISON, a Las Vegas cowboy, or, as his advancing years demand, cowboyman, sold a lot of steers at Cheyenne at a good profit, and then went to a dentist to get an aching tooth attended to. The dentist, seeing a chance to make something, bored a hole in a sound tooth of Clay's and attempted to fill it, but, being a bungler, broke the tooth. Allison got mad and went to another dentist, who told him he had been the victim of a quack. The cowboy went back to the first dentist, picked up a pair of forceps, knocked him down, yanked his mouth open, jerked out a sound double tooth, grabbed for another, caught a front tooth and a piece of the upper lip, and was tagging away at these when the shrieks of the quack drew a crowd, who took the enraged cattleman off, and ended the performance.

WHY IT PAYS TO READ. One's physical frame—his body, his muscles, his feet, his hands—is only a living machine. It is mind, controlling and directing that machine, that gives it power and efficacy. The successful use of the body depends wholly upon the mind—upon its ability to direct the will. If one ties his arm in a sling it becomes weak and finally powerless. Keep it in active exercise, and it acquires vigor and strength, and is disciplined to use this strength as desired; just as one's mind by active exercise in thinking, reasoning, planning, studying, observing, acquires vigor, strength, power of concentration and direction.

Plainly, then, the man who exercises his mind in reading and thinking gives it increased power and efficiency, and greater ability to direct the efforts of his physical frame—his work—to better results than he can who merely or mainly uses his muscles. If a man reads a book or paper, even one he knows to be erroneous, it helps him by the efforts to combat the errors. The combat invigorates his mind.

Of all men, the farmer, the cultivator, needs to read more to strengthen his reasoning powers, so that they may help out and make more effective, more profitable, his hard toil. There can be no doubt that the farmer who supplies himself with the most reading—the most of other men's thoughts and experiences—will in the end, if not at once, be the most successful.

100 Doses One Dollar. Is inseparably connected with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. It is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy, while thousands testify to its superior blood-purifying and strengthening qualities. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence, for economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Several thousand people attended the Lutheran mission festival at the Concordia college grounds yesterday. Besides the Lutherans of Fort Wayne, hundreds of farmers of neighboring townships, with their families, were present. The services commenced at 10 o'clock a. m. and were conducted by Rev. Mr. Gross, of the Emanuel's church. Rev. Mr. Stock, of Adams township, preached in the afternoon, and Rev. Mr. Kahler, of Fort Wayne, held the concluding sermon. Parties who could not go home at noon were served a nice dinner at Concordia hall for a small sum. The collection resulted in about $300 and the expenses were about $100, so that the surplus, which is to be used for the education of students, amounts to $200.

George D. Crane is at Freeport, Illinois. Mr. H. J. Ash went to Detroit this afternoon.

Pat McDonald, the genial clerk of the water works department, is a papa. It is the handsomest boy baby on earth, and Mr. McDonald is just too proud to talk about it. Every body gets water free this month—in fact nothing is too good for his friends, and he has hosts of them.

The Nemaha county (Ark.) Republican has this complimentary notice: "Prof. A. J. Critchell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., came out to attend the national teachers' institute at Topeka, and from there came over to make a short visit to his sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Head, near this city. The professor is a ripe scholar and a polished gentleman, and we would like to see the way open for him to locate in Kansas at an early day."

FRIGHTFUL CASUALTY.

Engineer Mart Burke Killed in a Collision of the Limited Express at Valparaiso.

Mr. and Mrs. Mart Burke lived in a neat cottage home on Douglas avenue, where now hangs orope. This morning before 5 o'clock, Mr. Burke said goodbye to his wife and kissed his baby child. He was to run the limited express No. 5 from Fort Wayne to Chicago. The passenger pulled out of the south depot at 5:45, with Engineer Burke at the throttle and Fireman A. Pelz with his hand on the bell rope. The train flew along and at 8 o'clock went into Valparaiso with a rush. Quicker by half than it takes to describe it, the engine flew the main track at the station and smashed into a coal car just run on to the side track by a local freight train. The engine made an awful lunge for the car ahead of it, but the crash was too sudden and the baggage car behind leaped the tender and wedged itself into the engine cab, crushing the brave engineer and inflicting injuries from which he instantly died.

Since the above report came the accounts of Mr. Burke's death are in conflict. M. H. Quinlan, agent of the Catholic University, of Cleveland, was on the train and interviewed the fireman, Mr. Pelz. Below is his statement:

Fireman Pelz tells the story of the awful accident: "Mr. Burke said 'jump,' as he put on the air brakes. We were crossing the open switch at that time and both turned to leave the cab. We run together and I threw myself out on a pile of cinders. I suppose Burke jumped from the other side [and was hurled out onto a pile of steel rails, because his skull was seemingly crushed on them."

The railroad authorities say that Mr. Burke was killed in his cab, and backlit with the fact that his neck was broken, besides the back portion of his skull being crushed in. They believe the tender caught him before he had his hand off the throttle. The fact of blood and brain matter being scattered over rails near the wreck makes the other theory equally plausible.

The conductor of the local freight train and his men will have to explain the negligence and when they saw the collision, some of them turned pale as death. They opened the switch that led to the untimely death of Mart Burke.

Mr. John H. Bass and Mr. Wm. P. Breen were on the train and wired the sad news here. They stood by and saw strong arms release Burke's body, and such a sight they never witnessed before. The thought of him leaving a bright home, and his valor and bravery made his death doubly sad. He was always fearless and the company prized him as one of their truest men. His wife is almost crazed with grief, and a host of friends mourn the loss of a true, kind hearted gentleman with her.

Mr. Burke's injuries are about the head and his skull was horribly disfigured. There were sad scenes at his home, and his little son, Robert Emmet Burke would vainly try to appease the heart broken wife by talking to his papa's picture and saying, "Mamma, he is not dead." The remains will arrive here to-night at 7:45 and they will probably be taken to Louisville for burial to-morrow morning. Mr. Burke was born at Madison, Ind., but married his wife at Louisville and it is there her relatives live. He was insured in the New Orleans branch of the Engineer Brotherhood for $2,000 and held a similar policy in the St. Julian branch Catholic Benevolent Legion. He was insured in another company, but its name is not known.

There will be a meeting of the Brotherhood of Engineers at 5 o'clock this afternoon and they will have charge of Mr. Burke's funeral. The St. Julian council will take action to-night.

CROOKED WORK.

A Daring Attempt to Rob the Residence of Prof. W. S. Heath—Other Rascallities.

Last night thieves were discovered in the residence of Prof. W. S. Heath, on Griffith street. A neighbor gave the alarm and yelled "police!" At this the rascals fled through the windows and escaped, although in five minutes two hundred people were gathered about the premises. Prof. Heath and family are in the east, near Boston. There were three men in their house and at the moment of the discovery they were cooly packing up the articles of value and small household goods. The purpose was to cart them away and leave the house empty. Officer Sheridan justly responded from his Calhoun street beat, but then the robbers were a safe distance away. This is one of the coolest jobs on record and one that might be consummated nine times out of ten as a light and stirring about the house is not calculated to attract much attention, especially Sunday evening.

Mrs. Self, who keeps a second-hand store on Calhoun street, discovered a man climbing over a porch to the second floor. She shot at the intruder and he dropped to the earth and fled.

Mr. T. S. Murray, of Spencerville, DeKalb county, was in the city to-day and related particulars of a robbery there Saturday night. Jacob Baltz, jr., discovered two men stealing goods from Barney & Erick's dry goods store. He shot at them and gave chase, but the men got away. Two suspicious characters were traced to the farm house of Wm. Knight and there their trunks and tools were found. Shortly after the men were discovered in a stable and given separate trials. One man, named Read, confessed and told where the goods stolen from Barney & Erick's were concealed. The other man broke down when he heard of this and then the men were taken to Auburn and looked up. There have been a number of robberies up that way and the people are rejoicing over the catch.

The residence of T. N. McNear at Churubusco, was robbed of $107 a few nights ago by burglars.

INFAMOUS ARSON.

Wm. Hewitt Arrested For an Attempt to Burn the Hat Store of Kyle & Reid.

Last evening Wm. Hewitt, who keeps a bed spring and novelty store on the east side of Calhoun street, a few doors south of the Washington house, accosted Officer Lee on his Calhoun street patrol.

Said Hewitt: "Lee, do you want to make some money?"

"That's what we are all after," remarked Lee as he sized Hewitt up.

Hewitt continued: "I'll tell you now on the square. I am to get $100 for setting fire to the hat store of Kyle & Reid, on Calhoun street and will divide if you help me. Reid is at Chicago and gave me his key to do the work. I will go into the store at 2 o'clock and I want you to watch closely, so that when the blaze starts you can give the alarm. I don't want to burn the place, but to have the firemen destroy the goods with water so Read can get the insurance."

These words fell on Officer Lee's ears like lead, but he held his own counsel and remarked, "all right." He related to Captain Diehl and Lieutenant Wilkinson his story, but so audacious was the proposition that they would not credit it. However, Officer Lee and Lieutenant Wilkinson watched the place.

True to his word Hewitt made his appearance at 2 o'clock. He entered the store, but so did Officer Lee. Not stopping to question the policeman again, Hewitt deliberately began spilling coal oil over everything in the store. He took a hat box, stuffed paper into it and saturated the contents with oil. He lighted a short candle and stood it in the box. This was to ignite the paper in a few moments and consummate the devilish work. Hewitt stepped outside the store and looked the door, only to be nailed to the front by the officer, who wrenched from his hands the key. Lieut. Frank Wilkinson opened the store, pitched the candle into the street and stopped a fire.

Hewitt is agent for the Fowler Manufacturing company, but sells rags and is into other snags for a living. He was looked up and this morning Captain Diehl took him to jail. Hewitt alleged that Reid employed him and then with his clerk left for Chicago Saturday night. Said he, "Reid is almost bankrupt any how," and the scheme was to have the clerk, who is innocent, come home and find the store burned and then telegraph Reid.

This is the story of Hewitt and the crime charged to him. His wife went to his cell this morning and wept as though her heart would break.

Fred C. Read is a member of the firm of Kyle & Reid. He boards at No. 32 West Berry street, and his version of the story is eagerly awaited. He may be able to explain away the insane and almost incredible story related by Hewitt.

Charles King, of Cincinnati, is a guest at the Aveline.

FORT WAYNE.

Two Pretty Girls From Illinois Describe Their Visit Here.

A few weeks ago THE SENTINEL noted the presence here of the Misses Knoles, daughters of Editor S. S. Knoles, of the Petersburg (Ill.) Herald. The young ladies were very pretty and attracted so much attention, that this letter from them will interest: "We were now in the state of Indiana and arrived at Fort Wayne at 5 o'clock a. m.; being so tired and dusty we concluded we would not take the first train but take the one in the afternoon. We repaired to the hotel, and after refreshing ourselves with a nice warm breakfast and removing considerable dust, we decided to see the city. We viewed the principal streets and buildings, visited the daily Sentinel printing office and inspected the several departments. The press room proved to be the most interesting. It contains several presses, and one especially to print the papers on; all run by steam. The press used for newspaper purposes is the Campbell, and we admire it very much, as it was the first one of the kind we had ever seen, but so often read of. Among the job presses were the the Davis, Potter and Gordon. They have, also, a folding machine and it was indeed a marvelous sight, to us, how fast it could fold the papers. The gentlemen of the establishment were gentlemanly and very pleasant, showing us the workings of all the machinery, and we truly appreciated their kindness.

We called at one of the leading dry goods houses and were shown through the store by polite and obliging clerks. The next place we visited was the post-office; the building is just a common frame one. Among the buildings we saw, the court house was the most magnificent and elegant structure, and is surrounded by a beautiful park. A marble statue of Washington is standing on the front of this temple of justice. We observed that there were a large number of machine shops at that place."

The Chicago Sanitary News says: "Mr. James Madden and Mr. W. D. Cox, two prominent journeyman plumbers of Fort Wayne, Ind., have gone into the business of plumbing, steam and gas fitting at 73 Calhoun street in that city. Mr. Madden is a gentleman of ripe experience and a thorough master of the trade. They were in the city Saturday purchasing supplies and called at the office of the Sanitary News."
